THE EVENING STAR. WASHINGTON:

FRIDAY January 24, 1890. CROSBY S. NOYES Editor. THE EVENING STAR has the fullest Local Circulation of any Newspaper in the World, and as an Advertising Medium is worth more than all the other papers published in

New York Office: Room 93, Tribune Building.

What the Country Should Do for Columbus.

Senator Morrill is so clearsighted and so uniformly has the welfare of the national capital as well as of the whole country at heart that any public measure proposed by him is entitled to the most respectful consideration, and should be adversely criticised, whether in or out of Congress, with great diffidence. With a full realization of this, and of what is always due to the honorable gentleman, The Star yet cannot refrain from expressing the opinion that in offering, a few weeks ago, his resolution to MOTION OF THE FOOT. provide for the erection and location of a bronze statue of Christopher Columbus in this city, he has wholly failed to rise equal to the requirements of the personage and occasion proposed to be commemorated.

The simple effigy of any single individual, however illustrious his character or however splendid his achievements, is entirely inadequate to mark, as this is intended to mark, so great a circumstance as the discovery of a continent and the momentous events that have followed that discovery; and the sum of fifty thousand dollars, which the resolution appropriates for the entire expense of executing the statue and providing for its foundation and pedestal, is only a tithe of the sum that a populous, powerful, and prosperous nation like ours Gas LIGHT SHADES IN WOOLENS ought to expend for such a purpose.

The erection of a statue is at the very best but an indifferent means of doing honor to a great man. Statues are plenty, and stand, alas! as often for commonplace mediocrity and alas! as often for commonplace mediocrity and obtrusive vanity as they do for the highest qualities illustrated by human nature. But little can be made of them at most, in an esthetic point of view, and they possess a real original are accurately portrayed. How far short, then, must a mere effigy, fashioned according to the fancy of the sculptor, or from scant and conflicting data, fall short of doing ings-Ruby, Old Rose, White, Cream, Light Blue, Nile, justice to the great discoverer whose name must forever stand conspicuous in the record of all the ages!

uatty looking when made up.
All-wool Albatross Cioths—50c. and 75c.—do not Obviously, the most fitting form of honoring the memory of so great a historical character and his unmatched achievement is a magniticent colossal arch, constructed of enduring material, and enriched with sculptures and carved panels, which would at once tell the story ought to be told and illustrate the gratitude and generosity of the American people. A creation like this, which ought to take many years of time and a million dollars, if need be. is perhaps too much to hope for in this age of is perhaps too much to hope for in this age of utilitarianism and narrow legislation. But Mohairs, 50c. snd 75c.; Hindou, $1. All on the ivory cast of white and all woven for those little festivities in its stead than a massive and splendid monumental structure, which, though less imposing in appearance than an arch, and less formid-characteristically odd and immensely sought for—at able as to time and cost, could be made, if $1 and $1.25. properly treated, hardly less significant and expressive in the lesson to be conveyed. Of this structure Columbus should of course be this structure Columbus should of course be the prices we unfold them at means a close margin. the chief and crowning feature; but those who held up his hands in his apparently hopeless undertaking should not be overlooked. It should furthermore be adorned with accessory emblematic figures, representing, let us say, Religion, Justice, Education, Faith, Courage, Perseverance, Liberty, Labor, and Enterprise, to each of which the new world gave a new meaning and an influence hitherto unknown: and the romantic story of his trust and daring ONE MORE DAY. and their far-reaching results should be told by minor symbolic figures, and appropriate carvings in relief or intaglio. Something like this THE STAR thinks ought to be set up in some suitable place in the national capital. Something like this it is sure the country would not Embroidered Kids, superior quality...... 1.38 only approve, but would demand, if an opportunity for the expression of opinion were af- Embroidered Kids, very best made...... 1.67 forded.

This proposition, it is proper to add here, is no new fancy on the part of THE STAR. It agitated the matter in the same spirit several years ago, as will be seen by the article reprinted in another column from the issue of the paper dated November 7, 1885. And hardly less objectionable than the statue

Mr. Morrill proposes to erect is the place chosen for it by the terms of the resolution authorizing its erection, i.e., the site now occupied by the Peace Monument, in the center of Pennsylvania avenue, at the west front of the Capitol grounds. That is not a proper place for such Ladies' 4 or 5-button Dressed Kid, with narrow a monument as Columbus and the Discovery of the New World should have, nor for any monument or statue. The Peace Monument now there, and the Garfield statue, occupying a corresponding position in Maryland avenue, should both be removed and those spaces left open and clear, with nothing in or about them to interfere with the vista leading up to the magnificent capitol building itself, which must always dominate and dwarf anything set up in a position to compel comparison. Perhaps the most appropriate place for a cemeterial group like the Peace Monument would be in some elevated but quiet spot in the grounds at Arlington; and for the Garfield statue a far more suitable place than its present site could easily be found, whether considered on its own account or with a view to fitting surroundings. But, whatever disposition of these groups might be regarded as wise, neither of them should be allowed to remain where it now is.

As for the proposed Columbus Monument itself, perhaps the best place for a structure such as it ought to be would be in the center of the great circle in the park lying between the Executive mansion and the Washington monnment. With a suitable but slight elevation of the ground leading up to its base, to be reached by well-paved but narrow and unobtrusive pathways, this situation would be a worthy location for such a monument as its object demands, and the monument itself would be worthy the position accorded it. -Another suggestion THE STAR ventures to make, while on the subject of location for monuments, statues, etc. It respectfully submits MR. I. BLOOM that the proper place for the new monument shortly to be set up here in honor of La Favette and his compatriots is the site now occupied by the Jackson Statue, in La Fayette Square. Except the Washington Monument the LaFayette memorial will be the most imposing in the city, as it will also be very much the finest, in an artistic point of view. Aside, therefore, from the obvious propriety of placing it in the square bearing the name of the chief figure of the group, the prominence and accessibility of that locality entitle it to a more important adornment that the statue now there, while the new monument ought to have a place commensurate in size, location and surroundings with its high character as a work of art and the purpose it is intended to serve.

As for the Jackson, it might well be transferred to Dupont Circle, as a substitute for the standing figure now there, which is not of sufficient consequence in size and character for the large space devoted to it, nor in keeping with its fine environment. It would appear to much better advantage in a smaller space, while the Circle itself would be vastly improved by the substitution of a larger work.

If it be urged against these proposed changes that they should or might involve changing the name of the Circle, the answer is that there would be no objection to that. McPherson Square was formerly called Scott Square, and the change was made without confusion or objection. But, even should the present name of "Dupont" be retained, there would be no greater anomaly in having the figure of another and greater hero in its center than there is in having the statue of Jackson in a square bearing the name of La Fayetto.

Overgarment sale. After tomorrow night it will be but a memory—a delightful one—to hundreds of you. It seemed to please everybody-this sale. We haven't heard a negative opinion expressed—except by the other clothiers. We expected it there. Progression and enterprise-let them tell it-is all wrong. The people_though-the ones who wear the overcostsdon't believe that sort of trash any more. We've got busy doing that-and WE haven't time to run the wheels of the other traders in town. If they're getting old and rusty and clogged up with old-time ideas-why that's their affair-not ours. We're serving you-and lots of you, too-and we want you to know plainly that we must withdraw this $15 Overgarment sale with tomorrow night.

There's one point we want to mention. It effects all your dealings with us. Bring back anything that doesn't suit you. We put your money in your handand you are at liberty to do as you please. You won't have occasion for that very often. We watch the garments too carefully. The chances against imperfections creeping in are a hundred to one.

If you want to replace the old Overgarment with a new one-do it tomorrow while you can hold the reins of a big bargain-825, 824, 823, 822, 820 and $18 grades—all styles of coats—at $15.

MEN SHOULD READ THIS.

Five reasons why men should buy their Gloves at the Palais Royal: Pirst: Because the stock of Men's Gloves is as large as any other two stores in town, enabling a variety that makes it possible to fit any hand not actually deformed. Second: Because all "Palais Royal" Gloves are guaranteed, and thus you are relieved from the risk usually attending the purchase of Gloves. Third: Because the Gloves are tried on at the counter. in order that a perfect fit may be positively assured. Fourth: Because the Palais Royal's cash business enables lower prices than quoted by the merchants who do a credit business. Fifth: Because we have for thirteen years made a specialty of Gloves and deserve the patronage of all men who wear Gloves.

CORRECT HOSIERY FOR 1890. First let us tell you we have no goods from last year. A counter for remnants every day in the week may or may not be the cause. What to us is now undesirable is what you require, if the cold weather is to last: HEAVY HOSIERY. The new spring goods have arrived in such quantities that heavy hosiery must go. Thus it is we call all Cashmere Wool and Heavy Cotton Hose remnants, and invite a surprise any day this week at the Remnant Counter. But we started to write of the new Hosiery. Let us proceed.
